

Title: Sparks Final Forum

On 4 May 2018, Sparks will hold its final forum in Brussels: we are proud to present the results and lessons learnt of this three-year pan-European collaboration. The event will bring together projects partners, DIY scientists featured in the Sparks' exhibition, artists, academics, science communicators, policy makers and more to share knowledge and ideas on participatory practices in science. This forum will be a fantastic opportunity to reflect and share knowledge on various forms of public engagement in science tested during the lifetime of the project. We will also look towards their future applicability in the broader context of sustainable development goals and research & innovation policies. Expect inspiring keynotes, panel discussions, workshops, interactivity, creativity and networking! You can find the programme here, and please register to the event here.
