

Title: The New European Bauhaus - Creating sustainable living environment on local level

The New European Bauhaus (NEB) is a creative and interdisciplinary concept that aims to reimagine sustainable living in Europe, shaped by visions and stories. This overarching initiative for creating a sustainable living environment provides a platform for experimentation fostering collaboration and linking the European Green Deal to our living spaces.

ERRIN has become a Bauhaus partner and set up a cross-sectoral task force to shape the New European Bauhaus initiative. As the first activity of the task force, a conversation will be hosted to discuss the objectives of the New European Bauhaus and provide input towards building a joint and multi-disciplinary initiative with regions and cities as its main drivers. This meeting will bring together different local and regional stakeholders to provide examples of what is already happening on the ground and how this work could be further strengthened and accelerated through the Bauhaus initiative.
